The government of the village (税) ) of Yungshou (永 富 ) in Pinghui ( 郑 澤 ) County, North Anhwei, is headed by an elder, UANG Huai-yuan (主 東 元 ), a 33 year-old native of Shantung. WANG, a former army platoon commander, has been a Communist Party number for eight years. He is not well-educated, being the son of a poor peasant. There is also a deputy elder, who is the routine supervisor of the village

- These two elders are aided by a village clerk, who looks after their documents, and three other clerks who manage population records, such as census forms, residents' registration, and the black list of former landowners and government employees.
- The Public Safety Section (治泉), which has powers to arrest and detention, corresponds to a police force. It comprises one officer and three men and a "village protection deputy" (護城泉), who is a former laborer and whose function is not clear.
- The village militia unit (成 久 族) comprises a captain, a lieutenant, and 13 armed persons. The militia is responsible for anti-bandit patrols and for arrests decided upon by the Public Safety Section.
- The Peasants' Union has two paid officials, a chairman and a deputy chairman. The Union includes almost all heads of peasant households, except those debarred by the black list, because it is politic to belong.
- 6. The Mutual Workers' Company ( I K) is a mutual assistance organization which arranges for all the peasants to do volunteer work. This work consists of tilling ground allotted to privileged persons, such as the families of widows of soldiers or cadres absent on approved duty. The organization has two unpaid officials who use the titles of captain and lieutenant.
- 7. The Women's League (婦女代 ) has one full-time official.
- The Co-operative Society (合作 社會係嫌 套質会), which has one paid manager, is, a powerful institution because it manages the government purchase of crops and any commandeering of local products which may be necessary.
